

COMPETITIVE

Synonyms: aggressive, ambitious, cut-throat

It may be an arduous climb towards the top, but you are up to the challenge. And the more competition, the better Competitive and determined, you have some definite ideas about the direction you want to take next. You feel excited about what is coming up next and have to make a conscious effort to stay rooted in reality in order to bring your vision to completion.

An honest-to-goodness go-getter, there is little that can stop you in your pursuit of success.

Getting to the top and staying there is the challenge that keeps him motivated.

Her competitive, freewheeling style demonstrates a desire for challenge and a willingness to confront obstacles.

She knows how to take advantage of her strengths in order to reach her goals. Energetically and effectively selling herself and her ideas, she loves the competition involved in getting to the top.

She is not opposed to leaving a few wounded in her trail up the corporate ladder. Only those closest to her will understand that her sweet and sunny outer disposition camouflages the hard driving businesswoman underneath.

It is important to you to be a winner and your competitive spirit is an added motivation for you to achieve what you set out to do.

He is motivated by competition and his own high standards.

By discreetly withholding his motives, he is often able to gain the competitive edge.

Confident, ambitious and competitive, he is easily bored by work that provides little challenge. His motivation comes from a need for attention and recognition.

His colleagues may see him as overly aggressive in his desire to win exceed every sales goal, but without the continual competition, this guy will shrivel up.

Not possessing a highly competitive spirit, this writer could lose heart when the going gets rough.